Lack of jurors prevented any business, except to fill the panel, from being done before Judge Robinson yesterday. When the roll was called, all of the jurors answered present except J. A. M. Johnson, E. S. Cunha, D. H. Davis, Wm. K. Haluahuia, Harry Asch, Albert Barnes, Frank Barwick, John H. Craig, R. Ralph Helm, E. Wells Peterson and N. H. Spitzer, who, the court stated, were excused for the term. Edward P. O'Brien was excused until the 8th, and Edward Dekum until the 18th inst. One of those excused is not a citizen, while another is under voting age.

There being but ten jurors remaining, the court ordered a special venire to issue for fourteen more. Fifty names from the jury list were placed in the box and then these fourteen were drawn therefrom, to appear at 10 o'clock this morning and serve as trial jurors for the term:

Samuel Kaloha, Geo. L. Desha, Jr., Manuel Miranda, Samuel Ehrlich, H. C. Brown, John C. Lane, Daniel Kaholali, William Dunbar, Henry Napua, H. R. Macfarlane, Jr., W. L. Fletcher, Abraham L. Shaw, John Isaac, J. C. Cohen.

Mr. Ehrlich served on the late grand jury and Mr. Lane is a member of the Board of Health.

The order stated that the venire was to be issued to the High Sheriff of the Territory and the Sheriff of the County of Oahu.

The ten jurors on the original panel not excused temporarily or for the term are Hiram Kaaha, James D. Dougherty, J. M. Dowsett, A. R. Gurrey, Jr., Willard E. Brown, John J. Egan, James Nott, Jr., Arthur W. Rice, Geo. B. McClellan and Albert Lucas.

THE CIVIL SIDE.

Judge De Bolt heard jury-waived cases all day.

F. J. Testa vs. Mary Ann Lea, administratrix of the estate of Amalia Joy, was assigned to Judge Gear, as Judge De Bolt is disqualified.

J. M. Vivas was given judgment for $1 in his suit against Cecil Brown, administrator of the estate of William Phillips, deceased. A. G. Correa, counsel for plaintiff, noted an appeal. W. L. Stanley, counsel for defendant, paid the dollar in court. Mr. Vivas sued for $25 services in connection with issuing a marriage license to the deceased, besides the regulation fee of $1 due him as agent. The plea he offered was that Phillips insisted on fetching him from house to office at great inconvenience to him, outside of office hours, to give him the license.

W. T. Rawlins for defendant withdrew the appeal in the case of H. T. James, assignee of the Honolulu Paint & Wall Paper Co., against Goo Hoy.

COURT NOTES.

Judge De Bolt approved the accounts of H. M. von Holt, executor of the estate of Frank Brown, deceased, which were filed November 27 last. They showed receipts $3863.32, payments $8010.51, balance $352.81.

Cecil Brown, attorney for Bruce Cartwright, trustee, has filed a brief in the matter of the disputed shares of Waluku stock in the estate of the late Thomas Cummins.

The Supreme Court, on the application of C. W. Ashford for defendant, yesterday afternoon issued a writ of prohibition to stay execution in the debt case of W. W. Dimond & Co. vs. Jonah Kuhio Kalaniana'ole.

THE FEDERAL COURT.

Judge Dole completed the hearing of testimony in the admiralty suit of Donovan vs. American schooner Encore yesterday and appointed Saturday for argument.

W. B. Maling, as United States Commissioner, yesterday afternoon began taking testimony in the admiralty case of Jackson vs. American barkentine Encore, in which the libellant claims $5000 damages for personal injury at sea caused by the parting of sheets alleged to have been rotten.

WORLD'S FAIR
COMMISSIONER

Among the interesting personages aboard the Oceanic steamship Sonoma yesterday was C. A. Green, a World's Fair commissioner, who is returning to St. Louis from a tour of the Orient, including the Philippines, Japan, Siam, and the Malay Peninsula. Mr. Green was associated with Hon. John Barrett as the representative of the World's Fair, until the latter was reassigned to the diplomatic corps. Since then Mr. Green has been acting alone. Mr. Green met F. W. Macfarlane, Hawaii's Commissioner to the World's Fair, during his brief stay.

SCHOOL OF THE FUTURE

In response to its article on Modern School Methods the Advertiser has received from a lady the following communication on the School of the future:

Time 9 a. m.—Teacher in bed, telephone on stand by side.
Rings up Mrs. Jones.

"Ah! good morning Mrs. Jones, has Samuel his work ready to send over?"

Mrs. Jones—"I am so sorry Prof. but his father was taken with brain fever yesterday and died, the twins fell down stairs and broke his arm while I was helping Sammy with those quadratic equations. So he did not finish them. Then the colored map of Russia and Japan with the number of troops, battleships and names of prominent generals on both sides is not quite ready. But if you could just wait till I have my marketing done and the twins asleep I think we can have it for you. We have just added 150 volumes to the library as you suggested, and I find them a great help."

Teacher—"I am surprised, Mrs. Jones, you let so many things interfere with Samuel's education, and he a big boy of thirteen who ought to be ready for college in five years. I shall have to mark you—I mean, the boy Q again."

"By the way, see that he hands in today in addition to his mathematics, French and the forty-nine pages of English History; thirty-two pages of Latin grammar and a complete history of the Czar, his relations by marriage and otherwise with all the European courts, a diagnosis of his present illness and the probable outlook politically of affairs should he die. Remember his marking has been very low of late and I hope you will give him more time and attention. Also see that his spelling, punctuation and penmanship are beyond criticism. Unless you see that he improves somewhere, Mrs. Jones, I really do not understand how you can expect to go up to college with him when he is eighteen. Of course if he were a bright boy I would feel like helping him, but being as stupid as he is I cannot waste my time on him. So do the best you can Mrs."—Central cuts off.

PRACTICAL TEACHER ON FORCING PUPILS.

Kamehameha Schools, Jan. 5, 1904.

Editor Advertiser:—Thank you for your remarks in this morning's Advertiser, on overworking pupils in schools. Both teachers and parents would do well to keep the matter in mind.

I would like to add the following: The principal objection is in the amount of detail required by the teachers. If pupils showed as little judgment in learning the lessons assigned, as many teachers show in assigning the lessons, we should have many more breakdowns than we do. But the pupils are wise enough to omit everything they can omit and still keep their grades. For instance, "The Blood of the Nation" by President Jordan of Stanford, contains more available wisdom than the pupils get out of the whole mass of stuff assigned them in their course of History. It can be read through in two hours; and studied through in a few weeks. And when learned, would form a foundation for good citizenship.

Your statement that most teachers do not teach, but simply hear recitations is too true.—If the teacher would spend more time instructing the pupils and less time "chopping off the heads" of pupils for not preparing work assigned, there would be less classroom friction, more real advancement, and less breaking down by both pupils and teachers. Pupils break down, not from learning what is taught them, but from worry in trying to learn by themselves what should have been taught in the class-room. And teachers break down, not from teaching, but from worry in trying to make the pupils learn by themselves what should have been taught in the class-room.

The wisest principal it has been my fortune to meet, had under his charge between 400 and 500 pupils; and the course extended through the Kindergarten and up through the High School course. There was seldom a breakdown, never a serious case. His rule for all grades was, give no "home work" that has not been prepared in class. "Home work" should be a review for the pupils, not a puzzle. His pupils did not cover as much details as the pupils in other schools; but they knew what they did, and how and why they did it. Those who entered college, stood high in their work. And all, with a single exception, occupy good positions in the professions, in business and in the sciences.

I wish other parents would say what they think on this subject.
